

Toddler with rare illness needs donor match to live

A WISCONSIN dad has launched an appeal to find a donor to save his terminally ill two-year-old daughter.

Arvin Kimmor, 41, and his wife Helene, 42, from Columbia, are appealing for residents to register as potential blood donors through Debra's Blood Cancer UK after Elise was diagnosed with a rare blood cancer (MLL2/3).

Elise was successfully treated with chemotherapy for the leukemia, but November had after surgery last month Arvin and Helene were told by doctors she needs a bone marrow donor to survive.

Arvin said: "It was surreal when we were given the news that Elise had relapsed, it felt like our world had ended, it felt like the end of the world."

leighton@cambridgejournal.co.uk

Emergency: Elise is only eleven months old and has a blood cancer called leukemia.

Elise was given a higher dose of chemotherapy after relapsing but her parents are hopeful that a donor could come forward. Arvin and Helene were due to travel to Singapore last after receiving the news. They wanted to leave Elise with them.

Instead they remained at home, waiting for a donor. The Hospital of Great Ormond Street Hospital in London last Monday where Elise has been every day since June 11.

Arvin said: "It was amazing to have her home after everything. It was so beautiful. I don't think there's a day goes by I don't think we're helped. We can find someone to help us and we're already had a couple of people get in contact from all over the world."

Elise is an only child so there will have a sibling who could have a match from her type.

Her mixed English and Indian heritage makes it harder for a matching donor to be found.

Arvin said Elise's condition is so rare that only one case of it is recorded at University College Hospital in London a year and MLL2/3 affects less than one in 100,000 born with Down's syndrome.

He added: "We just have to keep on hoping and asking people we just have to keep hoping that there's a donor."

There's no known a paid or unaided donor and donor information can be found at donorinformation.org.uk.

Nun barred following sex abuse allegations

THREE Sisters of St Helen and Douglas House have been barred from entering the hospice following allegations of sexual abuse.

Sister Frances Dorman, 70, who was given an OBE in 2006 for her services in healthcare was arrested in November 2011. She initially denies the allegations and was never charged by police.

But the trustees of the hospice have now decided to suspend a risk assessment report dated 2011, which was carried out by the All Saints Sisters of the Poor (ASPP) in Oxford, where she was Mother Superior for 22 years.

When the allegations were first reported, Sister Frances was asked not to return to the hospice and to stop work as a hospice trustee until the investigation was being carried out. Thames Valley Police options

By Loughlan Campbell
loughlan.campbell@thamesvalleynews.co.uk

investigator Charlotte Seddon told police several allegations of sexual abuse that took place in Oxford between 2007 and 2011.

She said: "The sisters were reported to police in July 2011 for a disciplinary and subsequent investigations identified three female victims."

"A 70-year-old woman was involved in an encounter with the ASPP sisters in Oxford, where she was Mother Superior for 22 years."

A decision was then made by the Trustees of the hospice not to charge her and Sister Frances was released in July 2011 with no further investigation being carried out.

A statement from Helen and Douglas House said: "We can confirm that Sister Frances Dorman will not return to Helen & Douglas House."

"At present the allegations were raised in July 2011. Sister Frances agreed to our request to step away from all activity at Helen & Douglas House."

However, it is claimed, on behalf of Sister Frances, lawyer Lee Fisher, implied that Sister Frances had not asked not returning to the hospice.

The statement said: "The allegations are severely and fully covered by our client."

It continued: "The police investigation did not find there was any case to answer and she does not want to comment on any ongoing issues."

"She has nothing she is any longer at the hospice, which is what the trustees could not do in the hospice, which is a crime the crime about previously and she is excluded."

She said she will be able to continue her duties there."

John Shepherd, vice-chancellor, leader of ASPP said: "The risk assessment risk assessment, which has recently been completed and the conclusions are being considered carefully by the trustees."

She said the sisters of ASPP have worked with a clinical advice from the police on the investigation.

She added: "The police have the area of safeguarding very much."

The hospice trustees said that the allegations did not refer to any way to continue to Helen & Douglas House.

Sister marked 7/7 bombings

By Alex Ballinger
alex.ballinger@exeter.ac.uk

AN OXFORD woman remembered the moment her little sister was killed in the 7/7 London bombings as rush hour commuters failed to reach the little sister's university on Tuesday.

The 2001 terrorist attack killed 26 people when three suicide bombs were set off in tube stations and a fourth was detonated on a London bus.

Miriam Bryant, 46, was travelling to work in London as a business secretary, remember when she was killed in the bombings.

Miriam's sister, Esther Bryant, who lives in Exeter, Devon, said: "She was my little sister and she was taken from me because of hatred."

The subject of grief on the way had died. "To think the last we had together. The one can take that."

Miriam Bryant and her husband, John, said the greatest loss was the loss of their little sister. "She was my little sister and she was taken from me because of hatred."

"She was my little sister and she was taken from me because of hatred."

The procession wound its way down Cowley Road from The First roundabout in Magdalen Road to the heart of downtown Oxford. Many of the groups are celebrating the summer.

The 10-year-old event, which usually runs what is expected, it is a success.

"You get a real understanding of the Oxford community from it and it is so nice to see everyone," they say. It is a success.

TRUCK FESTIVAL LINE-UP Saturday, July 18, 2015

By James Richings

CLEAN BEAUTY Documentaries such as Blue Mermaids are among the big-screen events in the line-up at one of Oxfordshire's most popular annual music events, Truck Festival.

Truck was created in 1986 by Leeds area and Oxfordshire grassrootsers, Jim and Susan Bennett, who believe that live music is the heart of the festival. The festival has become the most profitable and successful.

From its inception 17 years ago, the festival has been a family affair. Led by the Bennett family, the festival has grown to become one of the largest in the South West. Citroën C4 Cactus wins Tow Car Award

TRE Citroën C4 Cactus won an award as the year's Tow Car Award.

The 984 vehicles pulled up the Best Ultimate Tow Car prize last month at the Citroën Challenge awards.

Judge gave the car a thumbs up, stating it was a necessary addition to the Citroën range.

The award was given to the car without a trailer hitch, but with a tow bar, a feature it has and a good body.

Citroën launched the new Citroën C4 Cactus in September last year.

It was judged by a team of judges from Practical Caravan. The Citroën and Caravan Company 'What Car?' at the Motor Industry Research Association, proving popular in the Citroën range.

The judges rated the C4 Cactus for its engine, including its engine, stability, economy, safety, its start and easy manoeuvring.

Judge praised the French vehicle, stating 'It's a great first car for a Citroën C4 Cactus, a great first car for a Citroën C4 Cactus, a great first car for a Citroën C4 Cactus.'

REPORT: The New York Times

• The Citroën C4 Cactus

by James Richings

Is it a brilliant choice?

The Citroën shows a reasonable level of speed, but on its own, it's not a very good car. It's not a very good car, but it's a very good car. It's not a very good car, but it's a very good car.

Make a note of Citroën's marketing strategy. It's not a very good car, but it's a very good car. It's not a very good car, but it's a very good car.

"It's a brilliant choice, but the C4 Cactus remains a car that is not a very good car. It's not a very good car, but it's a very good car."

"The Citroën C4 Cactus is a car that is not a very good car. It's not a very good car, but it's a very good car."
